

Literature Resource Center is for researching writers and their works. Look up novelists, poets, playwrights, essayists, journalists and others from antiquity to the present. Find book reviews, biographical essays, full-text scholarly articles, overviews of literary topics, critical essays, audio interviews and reviews, plot summaries, full-text plays, poems and stories, and links to high quality literary Websites. Find also Merriam-Webster's Encyclopedia of Literature and their Collegiate Dictionary by clicking Dictionaries in the toolbar at the top.

Find It

Go online to www.ccls.org>Databases>L>Literature Resource Center

Search It

Click Preferences to set the number of results/page, peer-reviewed sources only or search term highlighting. In Basic Search enter a term, and optionally, select Person, Name of Work, Keywords or Entire Document. Limit, if you want to, to peer-reviewed publications, publication dates or century, content, type publication title, and where to search - all electronic resources or just Literature Resource Center. In Keyword search, if you enter several words, you will see results where the terms occur close together. If you want search terms that appear far apart in each article, use the word, "and" between terms. Ex. Hemingway and novels.

In Advanced Search, the additional limiters are document type, language and target audience.

In Person Search, enter a name or Gender, Nationality, Ethnicity, Occupation, Literary Movement, Genre, Subject/Theme, Places of Birth or Death, Dates of Birth or Death and Century. In Works Search, enter the name of the work or Type of Work, Author, Publication Year, Century, Original Language, Author, Publication Year, Century, Original language, Author Gender, Author Nationality or Author Ethnicity.

Use the Gale Literary Index link to find which of the many Gale Literature series include your search term because there may be a series in your school library or in the public library that are not part of this online subscription to Literature Resource Center.
